THE CONSTITUTION OF JAPAN

November 3, 1946

PREFACE

We, the Japanese people, acting through our duly elected representatives in the National Diet, determined that we shall secure for ourselves and our posterity the fruits of peaceful cooperation with all nations and the blessings of liberty throughout this land, and resolved that never again shall we be visited with the horrors of war through the action of government, do proclaim that sovereign power resides with the people and do firmly establish this Constitution. Government is a sacred trust of the people, the authority for which is derived from the people, the powers of which are exercised by the representatives of the people, and the benefits of which are enjoyed by the people. This is a universal principle of mankind upon which this Constitution is founded. We reject and revoke all constitutions, laws ordinances, and rescripts in conflict herewith. We, the Japanese people, desire peace for all time and are deeply conscious of the high ideals controlling human relationship and we have determined to preserve our security and existence, trusting in the justice and faith of the peace-loving peoples of the world. We desire to occupy an honored place in an international society striving for the preservation of peace, and the banishment of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance for all time from the earth. We recognize that all peoples of the world have the right to live in peace, free from fear and want. We believe that no nation is responsible to itself alone, but that laws of political morality are universal; and that obedience to such laws is incumbent upon all nations who would sustain their own sovereignty and justify their sovereign relationship with other nations. We, the Japanese people, pledge our national honor to accomplish these high ideals and purposes with all our resources.

Message from the Dean

The Nagoya University School of Law started out as the Nagoya University Law and Economics Department and Political Science Department in 1948, shortly after the end of World War II. In 1950 the Law Department and Economics Department were split up and made independent of each other, after which the graduate school was established in 1953. The School of Law, at first, used to occupy an old wooden barracks, within the confines of the air-raid damaged Nagoya Castle, which had belonged to the No. 6 Infantry Regiment of the former Imperial Army. In 1959 it was moved to its present day location at Higashiyama Campus.

The School and Graduate School of Law where thus established anew, seeking to build a peaceful nation of sophisticated culture out of the ruins of a lost war. The School emerged through the efforts of staff and students, initially making do with meager facilities and low staff numbers. The conventions and conservatism that had hijacked our old and better traditions were jettisoned, and a free and open academic ethos unshackled by authoritarianism took shape.

In the 60 years since then, the School and Graduate School of Law have come to hold a prominent position in the Chubu region as one component of a major Japanese university. They offer to society much excellent research, and have helped spawn a great number of talented people. The School and Graduate School of Law have needed to adapt to the changing times and society, and have engaged in various organizational changes and expansions, as well as improvements and enhancements to the research and teaching system.

We have been particularly active in exchanges with overseas universities and research institutes. Whereas law and political studies in Japan has traditionally been very much connected to the West, the Nagoya University School of Law from early on has focused on Asian law and politics. At the start of the 1990s we began to approach such Asian-centered research and education in a more systematic manner. We have now reached the stage where we hold the core position in Japan in this area. I believe that we will continue to enjoy, as we have always sought to do, the fruits of our open-minded ethos and progressive spirit born from a freedom that shirks established authority and which continues to this day.

Presently, the School and Graduate School of Law have concluded academic exchange agreements with forty-seven overseas universities and research institutes. Large numbers of overseas students study alongside Japanese students enlivening our campus. The Nagoya University School and Graduate School of Law will do its utmost to ensure that our students, with their great dreams and drive, can enjoy student life to the full, and conquer whatever goals it is they strive for.

Nagoya University

Nagoya University was founded in 1871, when the medical school and a hospital were established on the site of a local feudal council building in Nagoya. In April 1939, the University received its charter as Japan's seventh Imperial University. After 1949, in the comprehensive post-war reform of the nation's educational system, Nagoya University was given a leadership role in the Chubu region. It has since grown into one of the foremost national universities in Japan. In April 2004, Nagoya University was reformed as a "National University Corporation". This transition to National University Corporation status has made it possible to manage the University under the strong leadership of the President founded upon university-wide consensus while still continuing to respect the independence and unique features of each school and department.

Currently, Nagoya University consists of nine undergraduate schools, fourteen graduate schools, three research institutes and nineteen inter-departmental education and research centers^[1], one of which is the Center for Asian Legal Assistance (CALE) established by the School of Law in March 2001. The student population consists of approximately 10,236 undergraduates^[2] and 6,347 graduate students, including 1,668 International students from 93 countries and regions^[3]. The total population of academic staff is 1,701, and administrative and technical staff and school teachers at affiliated junior and high schools number 3,638^[4].

The main campus for Nagoya University is located in Higashiyama, a residential area in Nagoya City. The city itself ranks fourth in size among Japan's metropolitan areas, with a population of over two million. Nagoya, as the capital of Aichi Prefecture, is the cultural, political and economic center of the Chubu region, a region especially famous for its industrial production in ceramics, textiles, and automobiles.

1948 Establishment of School Law

The School of Law was originally established as a department within the School of Law and Economics in 1948 soon after the end of the Second World War. It acquired its present status as an independent school offering 12 courses within a National University in 1950, following after the law faculties at the National Universities of Tokyo, Kyoto, Tohoku, and Kyushu. Being a rather young institution, it had an advantage in terms of facing the challenges posed by contemporary developments. In 1989, the School, facing modernization of the traditional system of study, introduced a new curriculum and was remodeled to consolidate the 21 courses into two Departments with seven main courses. In 1997, the two departments were integrated into one Department of Law and Political Science with eight main courses. This departmental reorganization was aimed at modernizing the subjects of instruction, improving graduate tuition, and promoting systematic and cooperative research and education. The School is now among the most prominent of its kind in Japan with an excellent reputation for its legal education and research.

1999 Graduate School Initiative

From April 1999 the School of Law adopted further curricular changes, expanding the graduate program as a whole, and placing a new emphasis on graduate studies within the school. This reform was implemented as a response to societal need for specialist training and skills, as identified by Monbu-kagaku-sho (the Japanese Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science & Technology: MEXT). In practical terms, the School expanded its graduate intake and added further education options in the disciplines of law and politics. These new options were also designed to address the needs of international students from overseas, especially from countries in Asia, with rapidly developing legal systems. Courses were established to help all graduate students in the praxis of research and writing, and courses given by guest lecturers from the Bar Association and the business world were also set-up.

The recently renovated Graduate School & School of Law

1999 Personnel Development Program Contributing to Asian Legal Assistance, developing Training the Next Generation of Top Asian Legalists: from Self-reliance to Networking

In 1999 the Graduate School of Law (GSL) opened the English language-based taught LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science as part of the project of the Asian technical legal assistance initiated by our school. This program, aiming at human resources development in legal fields in Asian countries, provides education and training to those personnel faced with the task of building institutions necessary for the transition to a market-oriented model of government and regulation, a democratic system of politics and a civil society governed by the rule of law. In 2006, the Law Faculty launched an initiative for "legal education through classes taught through Japanese", along with the existing program in legal education taught through English, as described above. These programs have been integrated into a comparative law program, titled "Personnel Development Program Contributing to Asian Legal Assistance".

In accordance with the rapid development of Asian societies, in 2012 the above program has been reviewed and restructured under the concept of "Training the Next Generation of Top Asian Legalists: from Self-reliance to Networking". This program aims at training a future generation of Asian leaders in law and politics who can contribute to nation building and regional development through the construction and sustainment of legal systems and the provision of education in law and politics. This program is offering 15 MEXT Scholarship seats to competent candidates especially from Asian countries.

2004 Towards a New Style of Legal Graduate – 'Nagoya University Law School (NULS)'

All those involved in the teaching and study of law in Japan were profoundly affected by the reorganization of legal education in accordance with the ongoing restructuring of Japan's judicial system. Together with a number of other law faculties in Japan, in April 2004, the Graduate School of Law established a so-called 'Nagoya University Law School (NULS).' It is a post-graduate vocational program of legal education and training. Its completion is a basic requirement for taking the new National Bar Examination of Japan. As a key university in the central area of Japan, NULS provides a program aiming at nurturing future legal professionals of Japanese law who possess a wide international awareness and perspective enabling them to contribute to a free and harmonious society. The program admits not only law graduates but students from a wide range of academic and social backgrounds. The various existing academic programs of the Graduate School of Law have been adjusted to this new situation.

2005 Nagoya University Research and Education Center for Japanese Law (CJL)

The School of Law has developed the project for the "Long-term education of legal specialists proficient in Japanese" through the establishment of the Nagoya University Research and Education Center for Japanese Law (CJL) in the five overseas partner universities. In these CJLs up to 20 undergraduate students enrolled in each partner university are selected and taught Japanese with the goal of reaching Level 1 or 2 in the Japanese Proficiency Test by the time they graduate. They are also educated in Japanese law through Japanese. The centers are located at Tashkent State Institute of Law in Uzbekistan (2005), the National University of Mongolia School of Law (2006), Hanoi Law University, Vietnam (2007), the Royal University of Law and Economics, Cambodia (2008) and Ho Chi Minh City University of Law, Vietnam (2012). One dimension of the project for the 'Long-term education of legal specialists proficient in Japanese' is the establishment of the previously mentioned 'Legal education through classes taught through Japanese' in the LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program, which gives graduates of CJLs a chance to be educated at the Graduate School of Law. The aim is to train, in a continuous and systematic manner, specialists who can understand Japanese law in Japanese.

International Summer Seminar research visit to Toyota, Tsutsumi Plant

2011 Global 30 International Program: Bringing Nagoya University to the World – English-based taught undergraduate program

In July 2009 Nagoya University was selected as one of the Core Universities for Internationalization (Global 30) in Japan. The objective of the Global 30 is to strengthen the international competitiveness of Japanese higher education and to offer an education at a standard that will appeal to overseas students from all over the world. It also aims to create highly educated individuals who can be active internationally by providing an environment where Japanese students work side by side with overseas students. To realize the goal of the Global 30 in the field of social sciences, our School and the School of Economics jointly take the initiative to offer an "International Social Sciences Program", in cooperation with the School of Informatics and Sciences. The students enrolled in this program will be able to pursue their studies entirely in English and to graduate in at least four years.

2012 CAMPUS ASIA Project shared training in legal and political awareness – Formation of East Asia 'Jus Commune' (common law)

To engage with globalization in the 21st Century, Japan, Korea and China have made educating "global professionals" a shared theme, resulting in the establishment of the Campus Asia Project based on the agreements between prestigious universities in China, Korea and Japan made in 2012. The project aims at educating "courageous intellectuals" with a "spirit of challenge" capable of overriding stereotyped views in the areas of law and politics. It also seeks the education of "advanced global professionals" who can operate globally through their communication abilities in foreign languages. Through the promotion of shared education at the faculties of law, economics, and humanities in universities in Japan, Korea, and China, the program aims to educate, mainly at undergraduate level, students who can be active as future legal professionals, researchers, public officials internationally, nationally or locally, or company people, in each of the three countries or in the wider Asian region. The participating universities exchange legal information in East Asia, together with working toward forming theories on Asian law and assistance for legal infrastructural development, as well as establishing common standards for jurist training and law school education.

2012 Leading Graduate School: Cross-Border Legal Institution Design Program

Titled "Cross-Border Legal Institution Design" Program, the Leading Graduate School scheme initiated by MEXT

(Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology) was set up at the Graduate School of Law in 2012. The objective of the Program is to produce professionals who have a strong interest in Asia and can design institutions for cross-border transplantation. The students will learn how to offer innovative yet highly practical solutions based on flexible perspectives for understanding and comparing diverse societies. Students will also attain knowledge and appropriate skills in organizing and managing teams of professionals from diverse cultures using effective communicative skills. They will also develop their problem analysis, organizational, integrated and social management skills and conflict resolution skills. To achieve this, the Program has created a new five-year-long curriculum taught in English combining masters and doctorate.

2013 CAMPUS ASEAN Project

The Campus ASEAN Program, specifically known as the "Training a New Generation of Leaders in International Cooperation for the Development of the ASEAN Region" Program, was launched in 2012 jointly by the Graduate School of Law, Graduate School of International Development, School of Economics, CALE, and International Cooperation Center for Agricultural Education (ICCAE) of Nagoya University. Nagoya University and the seven overseas partner universities in Cambodia, Indonesia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam, has subsequently formed an eight-university consortium to implement this program. The universities together also develop a curriculum that combines English-medium coursework with fieldwork or internships at private enterprises, government agencies or international organizations. Short-term and long-term exchanges of students among the eight partner universities are organized regularly to nurture the intercultural communication skills of the students.

2014 Myanmar, Laos and Indonesia / Japan Legal Research Centers for Asian Law Studies

GSL and CALE have taken the initiative to establish overseas Japan Legal Research Centers (of Nagoya University) in collaboration with the law faculties of our academic partner universities: Yangon University in Myanmar, the National University of Laos and Gadjah Mada University in Indonesia. The aim of the centers is to disseminate Japanese legal information and information on the laws of the host country so as to act as hubs collecting and sharing legal information. A further aim is to operate as points of liaison for joint research between these partner universities and Nagoya University.

Overview of the School of Law (Undergraduate programs)

Student Enrollment

Approximately 150 students are admitted to the School of Law each year. Currently 725 students are enrolled in the undergraduate program at this faculty. With a full time academic staff of 56, these numbers compare favorably to the large classes at most other Japanese law faculties and help assure a hospitable environment conducive to learning. The school maintains a special admission system at the undergraduate level for overseas returnees. Each year, between five and ten such students are admitted, with an additional five to ten being admitted directly as third-year transfer students. These special admissions rules, designed to enhance the diversity of our academic environment, and to address trends in social diversification and internationalization, have attracted much attention throughout the country.

Objectives of the School of Law

The School of Law pursues the following educational objectives;

- Foster comprehensive knowledge in law, political science and other fields, deemed to be required for functioning in a global society;
- Cultivate the ability to make informed decisions based on a broad perspective;
- Nurture the ability to make appropriate decisions and value judgments.

As modern society grows ever more complex and the values that underpin it continue to evolve, a wide range of problems have emerged that have proven difficult to resolve. Against this backdrop, students at the School of Law are expected to develop the knowledge base and abilities described in these educational objectives.

Undergraduate Curriculum

Curriculum in General Courses Conducted in Japanese

The School of Law provides a comprehensive four-year curriculum since 2004 which offers courses in several specialized subjects as well as common basic subjects from the first academic year. Free selection of courses is permitted with a view to increasing intellectual engagement and self-reliance among our undergraduates. The curriculum also offers students opportunities to benefit from the more immediate guidance of faculty members through a large selection of small-group seminar courses. Common basic seminars are offered to first year students, while advanced seminars in certain specialisms are open to students from second to fourth year. Students attached to a particular seminar are supervised by a faculty member. Each seminar is made up of an average of ten students, sometimes including graduate and international students, along with the staff supervisor. This small community is quite active not only with class work but also in study tours to courts, prisons and business companies.

Four Year Program structure and Progression

Students in the School of Law take a variety of subjects over the course of four years. These can be broadly categorized as the "Subjects in Liberal Arts and Sciences" university-wide and the "Subjects in the School of Law". (Refer to the "Table of Subject Categories", given below.)

Grade Assessment

Since 2012, our School has employed a GPA system ;

- (1) Performance is assessed using five grades: S (100.90), A (89.80), B (79.70), C (69.60), and F (59 and below). With the exception of F, which corresponds to a fail, all grades indicate a pass assessment. There are some courses for which the above five-step grading system is deemed unsuitable. In this case, assessment will be made in terms of pass/fail.
- (2) The Grade Point Average (GPA) System is based on the following principles.

GPA is calculated using the formula below.

$$(4 \times S \text{ credits}) + (3 \times A \text{ credits}) + (2 \times B \text{ credits}) + (1 \times C \text{ credits})$$

Degree Requirements

To obtain the degree of Bachelor of Laws, students enrolled in the School of Law must take a total of 132 credits or more and adhere to the subject categories outlined below.

Subject Type	Course Categories	Credits Required	Sub-total	Overall Total
Courses in Specialized Fields	Subjects in School of Law	Specialized Courses 82–84 credits (Including 0–20 credits in Related Specialized Courses)
	Subjects in Liberal Arts and Sciences	First Year Seminar 4 credits Basic Courses in Humanities and Social Sciences 8–10 credits	96 credits	132 credits
Courses not Related to Specialized Fields		Basis Courses in Natural Sciences Liberal Education Courses in Humanities and Social Sciences Liberal Education Courses in Interdisciplinary Fields Health and Sports Science Open Courses Language and Culture 16–18 credits 36 credits 18–20 credits

Table of Subject Categories

Internship

The School of Law encourages internships. This involves doing work-experience in central and local governments, companies, legal offices, judicial offices and international organizations. This is useful for understanding how law and politics operates in actual society. Furthermore, it helps reveal to students their own aptitudes so that they can choose better their future path. Since 2001, preempting all the other faculties, we have recognized internships as a formal subject and have allocated credits to it.

Careers

There are in total approximately 9,211 graduates, as of May 2014. Many of these are engaged in various fields, such as the judiciary, national and local government, private business, research, education and journalism. Most of them are employed, as part of a long tradition of graduates, in private companies, industry, finance, communications, journalism and a huge variety of other areas. Those who wish to enter the judiciary as lawyers, judges or public prosecutors go on to further studies in the Nagoya University Law School. Furthermore, a third of Nagoya University graduates have become public officials. Not so many but a small number of graduates continue to pursue their research in the graduate programs to enter the world of academia.

Comparative Legal and Political Studies Course – Peer Support Initiative (PSI)

A Peer Support Initiative (PSI) course has been opened in 2006, targeting Japanese students wishing to study in cooperation with overseas students and to experience training abroad. The goal of the course is to promote and develop future human networks worldwide. This accredited course, was initially scheduled to run for four years under the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science, and Technology (MEXT) project for "Promoting Internationalization in University Education". After seven years of experience, this course has gained popularity among Japanese law students. This course provides an opportunity for Japanese and overseas students to consult with each other, create study plans to learn about the society, culture, law and politics of each other's country, and based on these study plans, carry out cooperative study and research in joint study groups made up of both students. Advisors for this course include academic staff from both Nagoya University and overseas partner universities, as well as graduates from Nagoya University currently active overseas. The achievements made by the groups are evaluated and credits are allocated to the students accordingly. Languages to be used in the course are Japanese, English, and where deemed appropriate, the languages of the respective overseas students and advisors.

The Global 30 International Social Sciences Program conducted in English

The Global 30 International Social Sciences Program has been offered from October 2011. It includes the fundamental disciplines of political science, law, economics, business administration and information science. Students are expected to acquire analytical skills, critical thinking skills and a high ethical awareness, such as are needed for the pursuit of knowledge across disciplines.

The curriculum in this G30 International Social Sciences Program covers comparative studies of Asian societies, corporate theory, international negotiation, international law, development economics, economic integration, global management as well as environmental issues. In addition to knowledge in a global context, the program emphasizes the study of the political, legal and economic systems of modern Japan.

Upon selecting their major, students can receive specific guidance from professors in their chosen discipline and are expected to conduct research for their individual graduation thesis under the supervision of their school's professors.

Lecturing on Comparative law and European commercial law

Mrs. Pascale BLOCH

Emeritus professor of law,
Paris 13 University, France

As a French professor specializing in international and European commercial law, I have been quite honored to be contacted to contribute to the G30 program in Japan. The Center for Asian Legal Exchange of Nagoya University offers a unique and special opportunity to develop courses oriented towards globalization and its legal consequences. That is a special project which is opened to undergraduate and graduate students from various countries who may initiate and develop exceptional relationships and international networks.

I had a chance to teach to young people coming mostly from Japan, Vietnam, Malaysia, South Korea, Uzbekistan, and Australia. I was quite pleased to discover that the students were very open-minded. I presented two courses on comparative law with an emphasis on Civil law and on some legal aspects of European commercial law.

Being invited for 3 months as a European scholar and facing students from Asian and Pacific countries was a great challenge in terms of presenting foreign legal systems. Exchanges and interactions proved to be a very valuable and thoughtful experience in accordance with the perspective of the G30 program which is to provide a broader and higher international education.

The specific attraction of Nagoya University is participating in the lectures and meeting with other scholars and researchers from various countries, to the extent that it procures personal enrichment and satisfaction due to the effective cooperation with Japanese scholars in a multicultural environment and thanks to a very good administrative organization and assistance.

Hokuriku Field Trip Report

Mr. HEM Sras
3rd Year of LLD.
(Comparative Law)Program
From Cambodia

The Hokuriku field trip what like very quickly leaving us with a great nostalgia making us want to go visiting again. This field trip made me understand the Japanese country and people who made a big effort and contribution to reconstruct the country in the post-war period. The construction of Kurobe dam and tunnel is clear evidence of the Japanese people's contribution and effort and has been left on the earth in a way that I cannot forget. This effort and contribution to the national prosperity will remain alive in my heart.

This field trip made me learn a lot about the significance of power sources (hydro, wind, solar, and nuclear powers) available to Japan and various countries, including my own country. I still support the appropriate use of these powers for national economic construction and prosperity.

Currently, my country is using two kinds of power (hydro and solar). The Cambodian government is constructing dams which affect the people close by resulting in the relocation of local residents away from the dams. I really admire that the Japanese government had a clear plan in constructing the dams which avoided the removal of local residents.

Cambodia is initiating the use of solar power. Currently, Cambodia is using this power for domestic and small business purpose. However, Cambodia does not enjoy the wide use Japan does because Cambodia lacks human resources and technology in this field compared to Japan. In the near future, I hope Cambodia can learn this technology from Japan to develop solar power for national economic development.

Apart from these points, during the field trip I also learned about the architecture and arrangement of the countryside though my personal observation of the rural landscape while travelling on the bus. In particular I noticed how the construction of roads going up hill preserved the natural beauty. This is an amazing balance between development and the preservation of natural beauty.

Overall, the Hokuriku field trip made me learn a lot about the Japanese country and people's effort and need for power generation for national economic development. I hope Cambodia can learn from Japan (in terms of its effort and technology) in the future.

Campus Asia Program: Studying On Campus in East Asia

Objectives

As mentioned above, Japan, China and Korea have launched a shared educational program of educating "courageous intellectuals" with a "spirit of challenge" and training "advanced global professionals", who can be active globally as future legal professionals in academia, in domestic and international public sectors, or in business through their communication abilities in foreign languages.

Outline of the program

The program promotes a shared and common educational program at undergraduate level at faculties of law, economics, and humanities in the prestigious universities in Korea, China and Japan including our university. The students participating in this program are selected at the end of their first year. Those students will then follow a common curriculum in the second and third year.

In the first semester of the second year, the preparatory work for each country entails the enhancement of English-language ability and the attainment of beginner's level in Chinese or Korean, in conjunction with training in the political and legal systems of one's own country.

In the second semester of the second year and in the third year, students will study overseas at one of the member universities and will take common classes. As a core curriculum, there will be (1) introductory classes in the law and politics of each country, (2) classes dealing with comparative law and politics, (3) 12 credits in language subjects specializing in areas in social science. As well as that, there will be recognition for attendance in classes conducted in English at each of the universities.

Overall five students at our school are sent to universities in China and five students to universities in Korea, making a total of ten students. Five students from universities in China and five from universities in Korea, making a total of ten students, are accepted by our School.

A system has been created to enable the mutual recognition of credits between the participating universities. The program is centered around the education of undergraduates, but partial participation in programs is admitted to law school graduate students and other graduate student. This offers opportunities for exchanges with graduate level students.

An Awe-inspiring Experience of Study Abroad at Nagoya University

Mr. NGOV HOUTCHHAY
2nd Year, Graduate School of Law under Campus ASEAN Exchanged Program, Cambodia

A great success always originates from a simple phase. When I heard at my home university, Royal University of Law and Economics (Cambodia), the announcement about long-term scholarships under the Campus ASEAN Exchanged program to train a new generation of leaders in International Corporation for the development of the ASEAN region at Nagoya University, I enthusiastically and wholeheartedly rushed to apply and took the exam for the program. Serendipitously, I was selected into the program and accepted as an exchange abroad to study as graduate student at the Nagoya University Graduate School of Law.

Studying abroad at Nagoya University has been giving me precious academic experiences that I have never had before. When I came to Japan as an academic exchanged student under the scholarship of JASSO of Campus ASEAN program, I strove for excellence to meet the study challenges at Nagoya University and brought back to my home university the fruitful outcome of my academic activities. Learning as international student in a cosmopolitan environment amid other international and Japanese students created quite a competitive and diversified atmosphere for absorbing knowledge, sharing experiences, learning social culture from various international students, as well dealing with daily lifestyle, critical thinking, collaborative dialogue, leadership skills and so forth. At any rate, I enrolled as much as possible in a variety of legal courses much which the home university does not provide in its curriculum program in order to diversify and sharpen my legal knowledge and insights with the help of the professors and students here.

Aside from studying, I got to visit a number of Japanese judicial institutions, such as the Nagoya District Court, Public Prosecutor office, Aichi Police Prefecture, Supreme Court, and House of Councilor. These study tours provided me with an invaluable experience in both the theories and actual practice of legal knowledge that would not be available from merely reading law books.

In conclusion, if anyone were to ask me what Nagoya University is like, I would unhesitatingly response that it is a great place which offers you profound knowledge and a chance to make your dreams come true. I would like to express my sincere thanks to the Campus ASEAN program with the JASSO scholarship and Nagoya University Graduate School of Law for providing me with precious experiences. I am honored and proud to have been selected as an exchanged student at Nagoya University.

Overview of the Graduate School of Law (Graduate programs)

Master's Programs

LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science

This program, which includes English-taught classes and Japanese-taught classes, aims to further the education of overseas legal professionals, policymakers, civil servants and legal educators. Coming mainly from Asian countries, graduates from this program are expected in the future to contribute their services to their home country. Successful students are granted the degree of Master of Laws (Comparative Law). (Refer to page 3.)

• English-taught classes

The English-taught LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program was launched in 1999. The program is two years in length. The curriculum requires both the completion of coursework and the preparation of a thesis.

• Japanese-taught classes

This program commenced in October of 2007, in cooperation with the Nagoya University Research and the Education Center for Japanese Law established in the four partner institutions in Asia. The program is two years in length, and the curriculum parallels that of the English-taught stream, requiring both the preparation of the completion of coursework and a thesis.

LL.M. (Modern Law) in Law and Politics (in Japanese)

Originally established for the further education of legal and corporate professionals, this Japanese-taught two-year degree program is open to overseas as well as home students.

LL.M. (Laws) for Academics – Researcher program

This Japanese-taught degree program comprises the first stage of study in the faculty's longest standing Doctoral program in Law and Political Science. The program is primarily aimed at those intending to pursue an academic career within Japan. A special entrance examination for non-Japanese students is administered, consisting of a written examination in Japanese, an English language test as appropriate to the applicant's field of study, and an oral examination in Japanese. The written examination covers the applicant's main intended area of study and more general knowledge of Japanese law, international public law, or political science, according to the applicant's study field.

Doctoral Programs

LL.D. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science

This program with English as the main medium of research and instruction is designed for overseas students from a variety of backgrounds in law and political science, who have completed a Master's program and have demonstrated ability in the academic and practical study of law or politics. The thesis, which is the core part of the degree of the Doctor of Laws (Comparative Law), should contribute to the resolution of theoretical and practical issues faced by legal and political systems that are shifting to a market-oriented model or on other related areas.

LL.D. (Modern Law) in Law and Politics

This program is primarily designed for those working as experts in the administrative, political, legal, or business world while studying toward the degree. Admission to this program is independent of and does not follow from the LL.M. (Modern Law) Program.

LL.D. (Laws) for Academics – Researcher program

This is the companion course to the LL.M. researcher program, suitable for applicants with native-level Japanese ability who intend to pursue academic careers with a strong continuing connection with Japan or relation to Japanese law. Upon successful completion of a Master's thesis and after passing the special entrance examination for non-Japanese students, an overseas student in this program may proceed to the final stage of study toward the LL.D. degree.

Leading Graduate School: Cross-Border Legal Institution Design – five-year-long curriculum in English combining master and doctorate

We have launched the Program for the Leading Graduate School* with the aim of producing leaders who can move freely around the world, can be active in the context of international transitions and changes in systems, such as in assistance projects, can design institutions for cross-border transplantation, can combine the skills involved in accurately analyzing social problems in a comparative manner and design systems, with communication and management skills so as to ensure cooperation with professionals from other sectors and cultures. The students will learn how to offer innovative yet highly practical solutions operating from flexible perspectives for understanding and comparing diverse societies. Students will also learn how to organize and manage teams of professionals from diverse cultures using effective communicative skills.

*The Program for Leading Graduate Schools is a project run by the Japanese MEXT's Japan Society for the Promotion of Science with the aim of creating graduate education programs and transcent of specialist fields. It combines top level teachers from Japan and abroad, involving industry, academia, and government sectors, so as train high-achieving students who can be active global leaders.

Nagoya University Law School (NULS): Program for Legal Practice (open in 2004)

The aim of the program is to educate and train future legal professionals of practicing lawyers, public prosecutors and judges in Japan. The completion of the program shall fulfill the requirements for sitting the new National Bar Examination. This program admits students from various backgrounds. The duration of the program is in principle three years, while one year will be waived for those who already possess a certain level of legal knowledge.

Student Enrollment at the Graduate School of Law

As of May 2014, there are 99 master's students and 41 doctoral students, along with 174 NULS law students. This includes 101 international students from countries such as, China, Korea, Taiwan, Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar, Mongolia, Thailand, Vietnam, Indonesia, Uzbekistan, Tajikistan, Turkey, Hungary, Poland, France and Madagascar.

Academic Calendar

The academic year runs from April 1 until March 31 of the following year. It is divided into the spring term starting in April 1 and ending in September 30, which is followed by the autumn term starting in October 1 and ending on March 31 of the following year.

In the case of the Comparative Law Program with its October admission, the academic year runs from October 1 to September 30 of the following year.

Outline of Master's Program

Degree Requirements for Masters

In order to acquire a masters degree, a student must enroll in one of the master's programs for at least two years, earn a minimum of thirty academic credits, write a master's thesis under the supervision of his/her main supervisor and pass an oral defense. Each graduate program has its own additional requirements in accordance with its specific objective for obtaining a degree*.

* The LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program requires students to take a minimum of 30 credits, including 10 credits from the compulsory subjects: Special Research I & II, Academic Writing I. Students may also take credits from intensive lectures and seminars given by visiting academics and professionals. Some courses offered by the Department of the International Cooperation Studies (DICOS) of the Graduate School of International Development (GSID) at Nagoya University are also counted towards credits necessary for fulfilling credit requirements. A maximum of 10 credits may be taken from courses offered by other graduate schools and undergraduate courses with approval from the Graduate School of Law Council.

A Message from a Student

Mr. RAETZ Benjamin
1st year of LL.M.
(Comparative Law) Program,
from Germany

Nagoya University's LL.M. program offers a unique chance to study under an excellent faculty and to immerse yourself in Japanese university life. It provides graduate courses on both international and Japanese legal topics, a multicultural work environment, and excellent student support.

With a background in German law, I was thrilled to study at Nagoya University. The exchange between German and Japanese legal scholarship has a long tradition, and the faculty was very welcoming. In my main area of interest, Intellectual Property law, I have been lucky to have a very active and helpful supervisor who has been of tremendous support ever since I arrived in Nagoya. I know that in Nagoya, I am being presented with opportunities that I would not have at a European university. Furthermore, while many European students look at British or American institutions for graduate degrees, pursuing an LL.M. at a Japanese university offers international experience as well as a gateway to East Asia.

Nagoya University is among the most internationally oriented universities in Japan. The number of international students is particularly high in the Graduate School of Law, with applicants coming from all over the world. I am very excited to work and study in such a "melting pot", but which is still a high-ranking Japanese institution all the same. Together with two students from Cambodia and Malaysia, I am currently honored to represent Nagoya University at the Vis International Commercial Arbitration Moot Court Competition in Hong Kong, a tournament with over a hundred competing universities. Three students from three different backgrounds, representing a Japanese university – Nagoya University is indeed international.

Nevertheless, the experience of living and studying in Nagoya is truly Japanese. The university supports the students with excellent Japanese language classes and inter-cultural events which help students feel "at home away from home" and make life in Japan easy.

Studying abroad can be a challenge, but you won't be alone!

Mr. Laziz RAKHMATULLAEV
(Uzbekistan)
2nd year of LL.D. (Comparative Law) program
from Uzbekistan

"Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world". Nelson Mandela

I studied at Nagoya University under the LL.M. (Comparative Law) program from 2002 to 2004. After graduation I worked as a lecturer at the National University of Uzbekistan Faculty of Law for nine years. In 2013, I was fortunate enough to return to Nagoya University GSL to study under the doctoral program.

Nagoya University has a friendly atmosphere, where, along with study you will be able to experience the unique Japanese culture. Academic life is rich with different events, including various workshops, lectures, round table discussions, and presentations by eminent scientists who often visit NU at the invitation of our local professors, during which you will be able to keep abreast of all the current news in a particular area. Each faculty has its own rich library besides the Central library. The Central library offers a variety of services necessary for study. You can enjoy a cup of hot coffee in Starbucks after a hard day in the Central library. Also there is a very rich database of online literature at NU. Another interesting and helpful service is that even if you do not find the book you need you can easily order one from any university within Japan through the university system.

The cultural life of NU is very diverse and interesting. Various cultural events are held throughout the year when representatives of different nations prepare their national dishes, show different performances, dance and sing songs. You can focus on one of the most important benefits of studying abroad, i.e. people. When you study abroad you will meet people whom you never would have met otherwise. You make new friends and new acquaintances who will enhance your personal network for all your future engagements. Communicating with people from different countries enhances your cultural knowledge as well as your cross-cultural communication skills. You will learn about their homeland and their values, which is enlightening and helps you to appreciate your own culture and respect those of others.

I have visited a number of American, European and Japanese universities. But I can say with confidence that University of Nagoya is the place where you can realize your full potential in a professional sense in one of the best universities in the world.

Courses

Regular courses are conducted in lecture and seminar formats. In seminars, students are expected to prepare a topic and present their findings to colleagues and faculty. Grades are assessed mainly from presentations and in class discussions.

Note: Almost all courses outside of the LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program are conducted in Japanese.

Master's Thesis

Students select a topic of interest in an area of law or political science and then conduct research on an independent basis under the supervision of their main supervisor. From the beginning of a master's program, there are technical courses for developing research methods and writing skills. At the end of the first year, students are required to submit a thesis progress report. The submission deadline of the thesis is ordinarily the second year of December 25. Students in the October entry submit their master's thesis by June 25.

Internship

Our Faculty encourages an internship program which involves work-experience in the legal department of companies, legal offices, judicial offices, and international organizations. LLM (Modern Law) and NULS recognizes internships as a formal subject and allocates credits to it. For international students enrolled in the English-taught program, an internship program is offered as an option and involves research at the legal departments of the six enterprises affiliated to the Toyota Group Company, including Toyota Motor Corporation.

Outline of Doctoral Program

General Degree Requirements – Doctor of Laws, Doctor of Laws (Modern Law) and Doctor of Laws (Comparative Law)

A doctoral degree will be awarded to students who have enrolled in one of the doctoral programs at the Graduate School of Law, conducted research for three years or more under the supervision of an academic advisor, submitted an acceptable dissertation, and passed an oral defense. While there are no course requirements, a doctoral student may take courses and obtain credits.

Independent Research Under Mentor and Doctoral Dissertation

Students should conduct independently their doctoral research under the supervision of their advisors, in close coordination with the schedule for academic writing. In November of their first and the second year, they must make a mid-term presentation once a year. During the third year, before submission of the dissertation, a doctoral candidate must make a public oral presentation of the dissertation. The student is required to submit the final draft of the dissertation to the faculty preliminary examination committee at some stage, which is to be decided in conjunction with the main supervisor. Based on the judgment of the preliminary examination committee, the Graduate School of Law Council will make a final decision as to whether to award the doctoral degree.

The LL.D. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science

This Program conducted mainly in English has its own specific objectives and hence its own particular features as given below.

Features of the LL.D. (Comparative Law) Program

- Critical Discussion Sessions (CDS): It is a basic principle of study at the doctoral level that candidates must go beyond the precise delivery of their own conclusions, however correct, and develop the ability to appraise and benefit from the research of others. Doctoral candidates are expected to exercise these skills in CDS set up on a regular basis;

- Research Management Skills Training Program: Training in the essential processes of research management, development of an overall ability and skills to carry out a continuous

A Message from a Student

Mr. Billah Maruf
M2 (2nd year) of Leading Graduate School Program From Bangladesh

After completing my LLB at the International Islamic University Malaysia, I felt that I should engage in legal research to gain a comprehensive understanding in the field of International Law. I found that Nagoya University in Japan recently introduced a new programme at LLM Level which is known as “Cross-Border Legal Institution Design”. After gaining LLM admission under this program, I found that this program is defined by its promotion of promoting international education in law and political sciences. The main purpose of this program that I encountered during my two years of study was to educate future leaders who will be identifying and analyzing problems of organizational management, responding to societal demands and conflict resolution in the legal world.

In addition to this, there are some specific goals of the program that nurture and explore professional ability in the legal world such as: to demonstrate practical abilities seamlessly across borders and bridge gaps legally, to participate in institution transplantation through assisting in development projects, to produce Asia-literate professionals for cross-border transplantation and comparative socio-legal studies led by student teams. This program mainly focuses on core curriculum course works, with student think-tanks for proposing their own research, organizing the organization of on-demand seminars and organizing and attendance at international conferences around the world.

There are some distinctive features that make this program completely different from other social sciences programs around the world. These are: international supervision and internships based on student academic interests, a multilingual research environment and world class research opportunities facilitated by worldwide academic experts and researchers, funding opportunities and Asia-based legal education. Finally, I can conclude that, upon completing this program, I will be able to do the following:

1. Develop flexible perspectives that allows me to understand and compare diverse societies.
2. Learn how to offer innovative yet highly practical solutions for the legal challenges facing the region.
3. Acquire strong legal skills, including in legislative drafting, and possess a track record of using effective communication and cross-cultural skills to organize a team of professionals.

informative research system through managing research projects from the planning stage to the evaluation stage. These skills must be learned thoroughly during the program, with a view to enhancing the research environment in the candidate's country of origin;

- Internship/Apprenticeship Program: This is aimed towards a more thorough understanding of the Japanese legal and political systems. Candidates will have an opportunity to experience Japanese private and public administration first-hand to acquire an active and realistic understanding of the system through internship arrangements.

Leading Graduate Program has its own unique curriculum

The Program has created a new five-year-long curriculum conducted through English combining masters and doctorate.

The master course involves classes, including core curriculum classes. About half of the intake of students (10 each year) will be overseas students. There are usually annual overseas internships or overseas training, which develop students' ability to cope in practical environments. Furthermore, students select one Asian language for study.

The doctorate course offers an opportunity to strengthen research and organizational abilities through invitations to teachers overseas in response to student areas of interest and “On-demand practicals” for research guidance, as well as through small-scale international research conferences. Furthermore, using the human network Nagoya University has built up in its connections with other Asian countries and support institutions, and through on-hand mentoring and constant communication with assistance projects, an environment is created where research and learning can occur.

Those who complete the course can expect to be active as specialists overseas in line with their research skills. It is also presumed that they will be active in the management sections of internationally expanding companies, in the operations of legal assistance, in the planning of international assistance organizations, and in overseas governments and international institutions.

This Program accepted its first students in October 2012 (Autumn entry). The top new students receive a monthly training subsidy. For details, visit the site of:

Opening Up Internationally – the road to Asian Legal Networking

The University and the School have actively pursued partnering and academic exchange arrangements with overseas academic institutions. At the moment there are approximately 280 university exchange programs in Nagoya University. Beyond this, our Faculty has set up co-operative exchanges and relationships with 38 universities centering on Asia.

In 1991 the School celebrated its 40th anniversary, and money raised by graduates of the school and the local business community was used to establish an Asian Pacific Fund to promote projects relating to Asia-Pacific law and politics. These projects challenged our faculty to tackle the new project of "Legal Assistance for Asian countries" in 1998. To create a foundation for this project, on 1 April, 2000, the Faculty of Law established the Center for Asian Legal Exchange (CALE). The building for the center was completed in March, 2001. This was made possible by generous donations by alumni and businesses in the Chubu area given in connection with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the school. The purpose of CALE is to promote international cooperation in projects and research on Asian law and politics, as well to serve as a nucleus for the gathering and distributing of information relating to Asian legal and political systems.

Through such activities, the School maintains continuous and active relations with individual and institutional partners not only in the Asia-Pacific region but also in European countries. Also by taking part in these activities and coming into direct contact with the law and politics of various Asian countries, we learn about the legal and political cultures of those countries which naturally makes our research and education more beneficial.

Students of the World Unite!

As we enter the 21st Century, people are becoming more conscious of their global connections. In the Graduate School and School of Law, we have currently 207 international students from 29 different countries (as of October 2014). Scholastic exchanges with overseas partner universities are an important element in the education of our students and the enhancement of our scholarships. The number of Japanese students of our School spending time studying abroad at the partner universities overseas has been increasing. Each year, overseas partner universities also send a number of short-term exchange students under the Nagoya University Program for Academic Exchange (NUPACE).

Study Trip to National Diet in Tokyo: GSL International students hearing the lecture (Jan. 2015)

Along with the individual-level study abroad program, our School is active in offering both inbound and outbound exchange students various study tours. Our one-week study tour to overseas partner institutions, which began in 2000 has taken law students to Mongolia, China, Vietnam, Uzbekistan, Cambodia, Austria, Taiwan, Laos, Ho Chi Minh City Vietnam, Paris France, Poland in 2008 and London & Essex in UK in 2010.

In 2001 the International University Exchange (IUE) Seminar was set up as a pioneering exchange activity in our university to bring outside exchange students to our School for two weeks. In that year 13 students from the Royal

*29 Countries

University of Law and Economics (RULE), Cambodia, were invited to the IUE Seminar. The seminar's theme was "Understanding the Japanese Legal System & Its Role in Legal Assistance to Cambodia". In 2005, the second IUE Seminar sponsored by ACCU (the Asia/ Pacific Cultural Centre for UNESCO) was held with 15 students from RULE Cambodia, the National University of Laos and Ho Chi Minh City University of Law, Vietnam. In the same year, nine students from RULE, Tashkent State Institute of Law, Uzbekistan and the Ho Chi Minh City University of Law, Vietnam were invited to the JASMIN IUE Seminar, sponsored by JASSO, the Mizuho International Association and Nagoya University. In 2007, our School organized the fourth IUE Seminar with financial support from the CALE Fund, inviting the students from the University of World Economy and Diplomacy, Uzbekistan, the Soochow University School of Law, Taiwan and the Royal University of Cambodia (RULE).

The IUE Seminar at our School has been continued and developed to be an official curriculum of both programs of the Global 30 International Social Sciences Program and the Campus Asia Program, in strong cooperation with the overseas partner institutions of Seoul University, Sungkyunkwan University in Korea, Renmin University of China, Tsinghua University and Shanghai Jiao Tong University in China, and Tamasaat University in Thailand. The IUE provides students of the Global 30 and the students from these partner universities with opportunities to discover and experience student life in Japan, to interact with students from other Asian countries, to brush up international sense and to create international networks with the study mates of IUE.

These students exchange programs result in the promotion of exchanges among students from partner universities and our law students.

As shown above, our School has become active in enhancing the level and intensity of international exchange. With the aim of taking advantage of these opportunities for cross-cultural exchange, the School of Law Volunteers (SOLV) was set up as a student association in 1999. SOLV is an outreach organization, helping international students adjust to life at Nagoya University and building up relationships between international students and Japanese students. SOLV activities range from hosting cross-cultural parties, holding study groups to learn more about the international students' home countries, offering assistance in coordinating School of Law International Student Exchange activities such as our annual ski trip.

Cesare Pavese once said, "We do not remember days, we remember moments." Life is sometimes strange. You get bonded with strangers you know for a very short period of time. You end up missing them and think about if you had had a little more time together. Studying for a master degree at Nagoya University has not only given me a chance to dig deep into my research life, it has also given me those precious friendships. Now is the time to say goodbye, but I will hold these moments in a sacred place of my heart and will cherish them all my life. It could be said that I would have never got those unforgettable experiences if I had not come to Nagoya. So from the bottom of my heart, I desire to come back here at least one more time. To all the international students, I want to tell you: coming to Japan is a decision you will never regret.

The Book Stops Here! – Library and computer facilities

Our Law Faculty Library

Our Law Faculty Library, which is located inside the Law School building, contains approximately 243,540 volumes, including some 100,628 in foreign languages. (An additional 940 Japanese issued periodicals and 100 foreign periodicals in the field of Law and Political Science are available at the Nagoya University Library.) The Law Faculty Library, along with other satellite collections within the University, is covered by the university-wide OPAC (Online Public Access Catalog) system and, for older books, the comprehensive card catalog housed in the Nagoya University Library.

University Network

Internet access is available to students of the University through a University-wide wireless network, which extends to student study carrels in the Graduate School of Law.

Elsewhere on campus, open-access terminals for limited use are available in the Law Faculty Library and the Nagoya University Library, and PC terminals are available in a Computer Room in the Graduate School of Law, where printing facilities are also available with the use of rechargeable copy cards that can be purchased on campus.

Lexis/Nexis Legal Database

The Graduate School of Law carries an institutional subscription to the Lexis/Nexis online legal database service, under which both undergraduate and postgraduate students may apply for access. No fee is charged to the student. Lexis training is provided in the first year through the required subject Academic Writing I.

Nagoya University Library

The Nagoya University Library (NUL) processes all library materials and maintains the unified catalog of all books in the university. It also offers circulation and reference services, including inter-library loans, photocopying, and computer-based information retrieval. In the Library building there are approximately 3,231,191 volumes of books, 2,337 journal titles and 33,171 electronic journal titles which are accessible via the internet from within the University's network domain. All library materials are accessible on open shelving except for special collections and microform materials. Circulation is managed by an ID card system and book detection system. For language education and other educational and research purposes, the Library has access to satellite TV channels, including CNN news, CCTVa, and KBSa. There are 1,000 reading desks in the open-stack area. A large group study space, seminar rooms, an information corner, and an audio-visual room are also provided.

The Library is open from 8:45 to 22:00, Monday through Friday, and from 8:45 to 17:00 on Saturday, Sunday and national holidays. The library is closed on certain days for stack maintenance. Admission to the facilities and borrowing are controlled through the ID card issued to students and members of academic staff. The Library website is the central access point for electronic materials, which are a particularly important resource for students working with non-Japanese materials. Mi casa Su casa – Information for international students

Educational Assistance & Extra Curricular Activities

Peer tutoring

All international students are eligible to receive tutoring by a Japanese graduate or undergraduate student in the Japanese language or in their field of study for a total of 90 hours, for the first year from the time of enrolment in our School. Home students who support an overseas classmate as a tutor receive a modest allowance from the University in recognition of their contribution. Information about tutoring arrangements will be made to supervising professors, who in turn should inform their supervisees.

Advising and Consultation Services

Academic Advisor

Every international student enrolled in the Graduate School of Law is assigned an academic advisor. The role of the academic advisor is to supervise the research and study of his or her students during tutorial meetings and to provide general academic guidance.

Consultation Services for International Students

The University provides counseling and guidance to help students deal with problems they may face. The University Students' Counseling Office offers advice on general matters. The International Student Advising Office (ISA) of Nagoya University gives international students advice on general matters related to study, research and daily life. On top of this, there are foreign student advisors attached to each faculty in the University, who provide support to international students on a daily basis in specific matters such as enrolment, study, and research at each faculty.

Extra Curricular Activities

There are various extracurricular exchange activities for international students at the Graduate School of Law. Every year, a field study trip is organized to give international students an opportunity to have better understanding of Japanese legal system, history, culture and natural beauty of Japan: a trip to the Hiroshima Atomic Memorial Museum, to the Tokyo Supreme Court and National Diet, the Nagasaki Atomic Memorial Museum, to the Chirun Peace Museum, which displays articles left by the "Kamikaze Suicide Squad" and some historical places in Kagoshima prefecture, to Okinawa, to learn about the horrific history in this region through a visit to the Okinawa Prefectural Peace Memorial Museum and to the religious place of "Koyasan" to know deeply Japanese history and culture.

The GSL International Students Exchange Ski Training Program has been held every year since 1999 in February to the north of Aichi Prefecture. It is very popular among our overseas students. Students can also freely use the sports facilities at the University. Information on the use of the indoor pool and tennis courts can be obtained from the University web-site (in Japanese only); <http://www.htc.nagoya-u.ac.jp/>.

Language Studies

Japanese Language Studies

The Education Center for International Students of Nagoya University (ECIS) offers the following courses in Japanese language free of charge. (Refer to the ECIS website: <http://www.ecis.nagoya-u.ac.jp/en/japanese/gaiyo.html>)

1. University-Wide Japanese Language Program

University-Wide Japanese Language Programs are open to all international students, including non-degree students, researchers and faculty members of Nagoya University who want to learn Japanese.

Standard Courses in Japanese/Intensive courses in Japanese

The Standard Courses meet for five 90-minute sessions every week, and are offered at eight different levels. The Intensive Courses meet for ten 90-minute sessions every week, and are offered at four levels. Terms for these courses are 12 weeks long.

Online Japanese Courses

The course is for those who cannot attend classroom sessions due to time constraints. The materials are distributed on the net. Only those who have access to the campus network, and who can use Japanese on their terminals can enroll in this course. Details can be found on the ECIS website.

Kanji

Kanji classes are for those learners who are unsure about how to go about overcoming the kanji roadblock by themselves. Learners may enroll in 100, 300, or 1,000 kanji-level courses irrespective of their placement in Standard/Intensive Japanese courses.

Introductory Lectures in Japanese Studies

Introductory Lectures entail beginning level content courses. Issues in Japanese culture, international relations and linguistics are discussed in Japanese mostly in lecture format. The classes aim at developing Japanese proficiency in addition providing knowledge about Japan, its culture and language. These courses are conducted in Japanese. Students need to have the proficiency comparable to Level Two certificate (Nihongo Noryoku Shiken).

2. Special Japanese Program

The ECIS offers two other intensive Japanese training courses for students who hold a Monbukagakusho (MEXT) (embassysponsored and university-sponsored) scholarship. One course is the Training Course in the Japanese Language for MEXT Research Students and Teacher Training Students, which last for half a year. The other is the Training Course in Japanese Language and Culture for MEXT Japanese Studies Students, which lasts for twelve months. Further details on these courses are available from the ECIS.

Note: Spoken and written Japanese is the most common medium of expression in both academic studies and everyday life. Students are strongly encouraged to study Japanese both before and after coming to Japan.

GSL international students enjoying the first experience of snow at Norikura Ski Trip (Feb. 2015)

Learning Other Foreign Languages

In addition to Japanese, the Graduate School of Language and Cultures offers courses in language studies; English, German, Korean, French, Indonesian, Russian, Chinese, Spanish, Greek, Latin, Esperanto, Italian, Ainu, and Portuguese. Students and foreign researchers affiliated with Nagoya University may enroll in these courses free of charge.

Financial Information

Tuition Costs

The fees for the academic session in 2014 are as follows (in Japanese Yen);

Entrance exam fee

Undergraduate	¥17,000
Postgraduate	¥30,000
Research Student	¥9,800

Registration fee

Undergraduate & Postgraduate	¥282,000
Research Student	¥84,600

Tuition fee

Undergraduate & Postgraduate (per year)	¥535,800
Research Student (six months)	¥178,200
(monthly)	¥29,700

Fee Exemptions

Independently financed undergraduate and graduate students with excellent academic records who are in need of financial assistance may be considered for a half or full exemption from tuition fees. However, applicants should note that such exemptions are granted only in exceptional circumstances.

Living Costs in Nagoya

Living in Nagoya is less expensive than in Tokyo, the capital city of Japan. Generally speaking, however, the cost of living in Japan is very high. The current basic cost of living is estimated at about ¥110,000 (Japanese yen) per month for the Nagoya area (excluding tuition and other school fees).

Scholarships

At present, government and semi-governmental organizations offer the following scholarship programs.

MEXT Scholarship

The Japanese Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science, and Technology (Monbukagakusho: MEXT) offers a scholarship to international students who wish to study in Japan. At Nagoya University, 334 students are now studying under the MEXT Scholarship Program and 41 under foreign government scholarship programs, while 1,293 students are self-supporting (as of May 1, 2014). Outside of Japan, information concerning the MEXT Scholarship Program may be obtained from any local Japanese Embassy/Consulate.

A student make a presentation on Special Lecture given by Mr. William Smith and Mr. Victor Koppe from Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia (Sep. 2014)

Short-term JASSO Exchange Program

A scholarship for studying at our University as an exchange student in the NUPACE (Nagoya University Program for Academic Exchange) is available from the Japan Student Services Organization (JASSO). The scholarship targets those students enrolled in universities which have concluded academic and students exchange agreements with Nagoya University. The scholarship may cover the costs of three to twelve months of study. Prospective applicants are advised to first make enquiries at their home institution concerning NUPACE and the availability of the JASSO scholarship and other sources of financial aid.

Japanese Grant Aid for Human Resource Development Scholarship (JDS)

The JDS program offers a fully-funded scholarship to applicants from a number of target countries in Asia that are receiving development assistance from the Japanese Government. This program was first established under the initiative of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Government of Japan in the 1999-2000 fiscal year. Its objective is to promote human resource development in these countries by offering opportunities to prospective researchers, government officials, and other persons seen to have the potential to play leadership roles in their country's development. The scholarship covers the full costs of study toward a Master's degrees at a Japanese university.

Every year we accept around 10 students under the JDS program from targeted countries, which include Cambodia, Vietnam, Uzbekistan, Myanmar, and China. Currently 35 JDS students (as of October 2014) are enrolled in our Graduate School. Those who are interested in studying at our School under the JDS program are advised to contact a local branch office of the Japan International Cooperation Center (JICE), the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) or a Japanese embassy/consulate.

Financial Aid for Self-supporting Students

Approximately 50 private foundations offer limited financial assistance to international students currently enrolled in Nagoya University. However, applicants are advised not to rely upon securing such financial aid after arrival, due to the limited number of such grants and scholarships for international students. Nagoya University itself has no internal financial aid or scholarship funds available. International students must, therefore, plan to have sufficient funds to cover all expenses required for studying in Japan at least for their first year of study.

My Study Life in Nagoya University

Ms. KHIN THU ZARA AUNG
M2, (Comparative Law)
Program
From Myanmar (2013-2015)

Looking back over the two years and six months of study here, time has flown so fast for me because everything has been so full of interest for me throughout my study life in Nagoya. Prior to joining this program, I served as a law officer at the Union Attorney General's Office for three years and five months.

First of all, the comfortable environment makes me enjoy the student life of Nagoya University. I am so impressed by the highly academic thinking, teaching tools and techniques at the various classes at the GSL. The invaluable experience from each lecture arouses my soul to do research continuously in my future profession. I like both Nagoya University's big library and its law library. I get the chance to share my knowledge and experiences with other students from various countries with different cultural, social and educational backgrounds. I also had a great chance in my study life to extend my knowledge in regard to the Japanese culture and society.

In the first six months of study life, I took the Japanese Language Course at the Education Center for International Students (ECIS). Consequently, I do not feel homesick so much because I enjoy both the English-speaking environment and the Japanese-speaking environment. As one of my hobbies is travelling, most of my leisure time in Japan has been spent travelling during the four distinct and beautiful seasons. In terms of food, I really like Japanese cuisine, such as tempura and sushi. If I want to eat some traditional foods, Nagoya has a lot of shops from the various countries. So as not spend all my times in academic research, I can manage the time schedule for my research and for taking academic class very well. Lastly, I believe that I can effectively contribute to my country's development by applying what I have obtained.

Accommodation

New students from abroad are generally accommodated in one of the university international residences for a maximum period of half a year, after which they move on to other accommodation as described below. However, despite our best endeavors to ensure all international students obtain comfortable accommodation, due to the limited number of places available in each housing category, students cannot be guaranteed their first choice of accommodation in every case. Applications for the other forms of accommodation given below (except for private housing) should be made through the International Affairs Division of the University administrative office.

University Residences

Nagoya University provides three dormitories for international students: the International Residence Higashiyama (on Higashiyama campus), the Foreign Students House (off campus), the International Ohmeikan House (off campus), International Residence Yamate and the International Residence Myoken just opened in October 2011 (10 minutes on foot to Higashiyama Campus). As the number of international students exceeds the capacity available so we can only provide a limited number of places, mostly to newcomers, for a maximum period of half a year.

(Refer to: <http://www.nagoya-u.ac.jp/en/academics/daily-life/housing>)

International Student Center

There is another dormitory called the International Student Center, which was established through the collaboration of the local governments of Nagoya City and Aichi Prefecture. Its goal is to accommodate overseas students studying at universities in Aichi Prefecture and to promote exchanges between these students and local residents.

Renting Private Housing

Generally in Nagoya, the monthly rent for an unfurnished, one bedroom apartment with kitchenette, toilet, and bath ranges between 40,000 yen and 60,000 yen for single room, depending on location, size and amenities. A security deposit and a key money payment, both of which are approximately two months' rent are also required at the time the contract is signed. Since the apartment's are usually not furnished, students have to purchase all household appliances and utensils themselves, such as refrigerator, heater, furniture, pots and pans, and cutlery. It should be noted that good quality and inexpensive accommodation is not easily obtained in Nagoya.

Public Housing

Public housing provided by Nagoya City is available for international students who wish to live with their families. The rent is reasonable and has enough space for whole families.

Company Housing

A limited amount of company housing for international students has been made available mostly for single students.

Medical Assistance & Personal Accident Insurance

Insurance Overview

International students who hold a "College Student" visa are required to join the "National Health Insurance (JNHI*)" scheme, under which medical treatment can be obtained at about 30% of the normal charge. Students of Nagoya University are also required to participate in the "Personal Accident Insurance Scheme for Students Pursuing Education and Research". The premium for this scheme is 950 yen for a one-year policy and 1,700 yen for a two-year policy. The insurance covers physical injury or damage caused as a result of sudden and unexpected accidents while engaged in education or research at the university or by accidents that occur while commuting to one's school or when in transit between school facilities.

* Japan National Health Insurance (JNHI)

JNHI is a national insurance scheme administered through each local government and funded by participants' premiums, with subsidies from both the national and prefecture governments. Premiums vary, depending on such factors as the applicant's annual income and number of dependents. International students, however, may apply for a reduction of the premium at the time of application by declaring that they have not received any income during the previous year. Generally speaking, the premium for international students is approximately 12,220 yen per year, depending upon the policies adopted by the local government where the insured resides. The JNHI policy covers around 70% of the cost of general medical and dental care and hospitalization.

On-campus Medical Assistance

The Health Administration Office on the Nagoya University campus provides first-contact medical services, such as health check-ups, psychiatric counseling, health advice, and first aid treatment for students, researchers and staff of the University. In cases that require further treatment, the office will recommend an appropriate hospital.

Part-Time Work

International students wishing work on a part-time basis are required to apply for permission to participate in activities which is not included in their visa status. Students working without this permit, and those who fail to follow the regulations pertaining to the permit, will be fined, and in some cases, deported. The maximum hours of work, where permission has been granted, are 28 hours per week for degree-seeking undergraduate and graduate students, and 14 hours per week for research students. (In case that research students pursue research on a particular topic under the supervision of their advisors, they will be permitted to work the same hours as degree-seeking students.) During official university long vacations, all students with permits may work a maximum of 8 hours per day.

Commencement for the students of Comparative Law Program (Oct. 2014)

Internship at Legal Affairs Department at a Manufacturing Company

Mr. Marzuki Marnala
Sinambela
2nd year of LL.M.
(Comparative Law) Program
from Indonesia

In my second year I joined a two week internship at the legal department of Aisin Seiki at their headquarters in Kariya, south of Nagoya. This huge company serves as one of the subsidiaries for Toyota manufacturing and has more than 180 subsidiaries of their own across the globe. It has had a long history in auto-parts manufacturing in Japan and beyond, and is expanding to other areas as well. In 2015 they will celebrate the 50th year of operation, and I have been privileged to experience a bit of their daily business.

As an international company, Aisin is busy. They have to juggle around the rules and regulations of different countries – and cultures too, while keeping pace with domestic laws here in Japan. They have to balance the dynamics of their businesses and the complexity of legal issues in most of their subsidiaries. During the internship I was introduced to some of the regulations and cases. I also tried to provide practical solutions from my own perspective. The people of Aisin are dynamic, on time, hardworking, and they clean their office space too. I was also granted two visits to their factories and witnessed how the infamous slogans of ‘kaizen’ and ‘just in time’ work in real life.

This is part of the constant internship programs offered by the Graduate School of Law in Nagoya University. It adds to the many other great experiences I have had during the course of two years in Japan. First of all, studying law in Japan is a feat of its own considering the country’s history as being, in my view, the first country that successfully merged western and eastern systems. And then, there are also the other activities such as this internship, which was a highlight of its own at the end of my study journey.

Application & Admission for International Students

Graduate School of Law

Before You Apply

Since students will receive classes through the language required in each program and will write a master's thesis under the guidance of their supervisors, an adequate level of language and the ability to complete a master's thesis about a particular research topic within two years after enrolling in our Graduate School is required. It is necessary, therefore, in the recruitment process for the candidate to indicate a concrete research topic that they have in mind for writing their thesis. This concrete research topic should be indicated in the 'Research Plan' section of the application form. Candidates should write about the challenges of this topic, their own awareness of it, details about it, and the method to be used for progressing with the research.

As graduate-level instruction involves direct supervision by a member of academic staff, applications that demonstrate knowledge of the staff and programs of the Faculty will be favored over those that do not. To help with the specification of research topics, visit the Faculty page on the website of our School. Applicants should also pay particular attention to the supervision burdens of the Faculty in their intended area of study. Information in regard to this is available in the Faculty page of our website.

All applicants should be aware that admission to heavily subscribed areas is particularly competitive.

Master's Programs

To be eligible for admission to the graduate programs, applicants are required to satisfy the threshold qualifications* and pass an examination. Each program has its own application requirements and procedures.

* Those who wish to apply for admission to master's program must, in principle, have completed a 16-year curriculum of school education by March or October of the year of anticipated enrolment.

Doctoral Programs

Application to the doctoral program requires in most cases the completion of the master's program, submission of a master's thesis deemed by the Faculty to be of qualifying level and the successful completion of an oral examination. Japanese language proficiency is in most cases required for the doctoral programs. Applicants are reminded that completion of the master's program at our Graduate School does not constitute automatic admission to the doctoral program.

Conditions Applicable to Each Program

Each program has its own conditions for application. For details of specific conditions applicable to each graduate program, contact the Student Affairs Section of the Administrative Office of our School.

LL.M. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science

• English-taught program

This program, with English as the main language, is designed for international students, mainly from Asian countries. Entrants are accepted in April and in October*.

For the April entry, applications will be accepted both in September and in January.

Titled "Training the Next Generation of Top Asian Legalists: from Self-reliance to Networking", the Program of October entry has its own application procedure. (Visit the website of: <http://gsl-nagoya-u.net/admissions/llm-applications/>)

The selection of students will be made through document screening and an interview, all of which is conducted in English.

• Japanese-taught program (October Entry only)

In keeping with the goals set out in the establishment of the 'Legal Education through Japanese classes,' the targeted students will be those who have completed over 3 years study at one of the Nagoya University Research and Education Center for Japanese Law (See page 3.) and who have completed their university education in law and politics.

LL.D. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science

This program, mainly conducted in English, is designed for international students who have completed a master's program in the field of law and politics. This program accepts entrants in April and in October*.

For the April entry, applications will be accepted in January. The selection will be made through a master's thesis examination, documents screening and an interview.

* The October entry for the above programs for Comparative Law Programs have their own specific application process with a limited number of candidate places reserved for entrants receiving financing from the MEXT Scholarship. Applicants to these places are restricted to candidates from partner universities of our School that have a close relationship with us through the Legal Assistance Project.

Five-year Doctoral Program for Academics

• The first stage of a Doctoral Program

Applicants are selected by means of a written examination in Japanese, an English language test (depending on the applicant's major), and an oral examination in Japanese, which is held at the beginning of February. A written examination is conducted in the applicant's main area of study and, depending on the applicant's major, in the legal system of Japan, public law, or political science. Applications are accepted in early January.

• The second stage of a Doctoral Program

Students of the first stage of the doctoral program may proceed to its second (final) stage upon successful completion of their master's thesis written in Japanese and passing the special entrance examination for non-Japanese students, which includes an examination of a master's thesis, a foreign language test and an oral examination in Japanese.

Entrance Ceremony (Oct. 2014)

LL.M. (Modern Law) Applied Program in Law and Politics

A special selection for non-Japanese applicants expecting to conduct studies in Japanese is available in this program. The special selection is made through document screening, a written examination and an interview, all in Japanese. Applications are accepted in September and in January.

LL.D. (Modern Law) Applied Program in Law and Politics for Professionals

This program is primarily designed for those who are currently working as experts in the administrative, political, legal, or business world and are able to complete the doctoral program while still employed. A special selection for foreign applicants is not available for this program.

Five-year Leading Graduate Program: Cross-Border Legal Institution Design

This program is inviting applicants who have an excellent command of English, have demonstrated academic excellence in law and/or political science in their home jurisdiction, have a strong interest in Asia, along with objective insights into diverse cultures and groups, an ability to develop sound research proposals and strong motivation to master an Asian language.

School of Law

General Program

To be eligible for the undergraduate programs, foreign applicants must satisfy the threshold qualifications and pass the entrance examination. A special entrance examination is available for self-supporting foreign applicants.

Those who wish to apply for admission to the undergraduate program must have completed or be expecting to complete a 12 year curriculum of school education by March of the year of anticipated enrolment.

Foreign applicants who plan to study at their own expense must take the Examination for Japanese University Admission for International Students and the relevant undergraduate entrance examination held by the Nagoya

University School of Law.

Information concerning application procedures and entrance examinations can be obtained from:

Online Application and Admissions System for G30 Program

Details of Admissions System for the Undergraduate International G30 Program at Nagoya University are available on the website of: http://admissions.g30.nagoya-u.ac.jp/en/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=991&Itemid=1302

Research Students

The university offers an irregular student status of "research student" (kenkyu-sei) who independently pursue the study of a specific subject in the School and the Graduate School of Law, outside of our degree programs. Students who wish to be associated with the School as research students may consult with the Student Affairs section of the School. In advance of applying, applicants must obtain the agreement of a faculty advisor in their field. The application form is downloadable from the GSL website: <http://gsl.nagoya-u.net/admission/>.

Research students are admitted two times each year, in April and in October, and the number of places is limited according to available space and the burden on our research facilities. Applications are accepted in three rounds, with deadlines falling on the last working day of June, on the latest working day on or before December 24, and on the last working day of February.

Note: This status is most commonly used as a preliminary step toward sitting a graduate entrance examination.
